2014 Reserve Red Wine

VINTAGE

Over the course of the last five vintages, the Columbia Valley has seen a shift from two of this decade's cooler vintages in 2010 and 2011 to the two warmest vintages of the last ten years in 2013 and 2014. In 2014, an early bud break was followed by warm temperatures that persisted through the summer and well into the fall. Harvest started earlier than most vintages and finished 10 days earlier than normal. This added warmth has helped create wines that are intensely aromatic with very concentrated flavors.

VINEYARDS

The Cabernet Sauvignon portion of this blend comes from both Champoux Vineyard (60%) and Weinbau Vineyard (40%). Champoux, one of the state's most revered vineyards, provides great suppleness and concentration to the blend, while Weinbau adds both structure and length. Champoux is also the source of the Merlot and Malbec in the blend while Weinbau provides the Cabernet Franc portion of the blend.

WINEMAKING

After destemming and crushing, grapes were fermented on their skins for an average of eight days. After being pressed off, this blend was aged for 21 months in predominantly new French Oak barrels to improve its already lengthy finish. Racking the wine every five months created supple tannins and a long, lingering finish.

TASTING NOTES

Complex aromas of currant, plum, and black raspberries fill the glass. In addition to great structure, this wine is brimming with both black and red fruit flavors on the palate that lend focus to the long, generous finish. This wine will age beautifully for the next 20 years.
